

Abstract

The invention concerns a separation matrix for purifying His-tag proteins by the introduction of alkyl substituents into a TED molecule, if applicable by the use of support
5 materials having an average pore width $> 10^{-7}$ m (1000 Å).